Established 1869. BELLEFONTE, PA., THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1909. Vol. 42. No. 44.

SISSON AND STOBER AT RECEPTION TO-NIGHT

To Greet Distinguished Nominees at Bush House.

WILL ARRIVE AT 8.20 P. M.

Accompanied By Speaker Cox and Major Alexander McDowell the Party Standard-Bearers Will Make Brief Visit to Bellefonte.

Centre County Republicans will tonight be afforded an opportunity to greet Senator A. E. Sisson, of Erie, and former Senator Jeremiah A. Stober, of Lancaster, nominees for Auditor General and State Treasurer, respectively. Accompanied by Speaker John F. Cox, Major Alexander McDowell, Chief Clerk of the House, at Washington, the distinguished Republican candidates will arrive in town at 8:20 o'clock tonight and be tendered an informal reception at the Bush House. Later in the evening they will visit the Bellefonte Club and probably the Elks. The reception will be under the direction of County Chairman Harry Keller.

"The Republican" extends cordial greetings to Senator Sisson and his colleagues on the occasion of their first visit to Bellefonte since the Republican State Convention. Centre County Republicans who attend tonight's reception will find that their candidates are men of the highest type and well qualified in every way for the offices to which they will be elected by handsome majorities in November.

Senator Sisson is a man of sterling qualities. He is a lawyer, a man with extensive business interests and a Republican of unswerving loyalty to party faith. Few men who have served in the State Legislature in recent years have as many friends as has Senator Sisson. When recently re-elected to the State Senate he was accorded the nomination of all parties by his home people, of Erie. A man of rather retiring nature and at all times unassuming, Senator Sisson's popularity is such that his friends represent the supporters of all parties. That he will poll a tremendous vote in November is a foregone con-

Senator Stober is also a man of great popularity. He, too, stands best among his own people, of Lancaster county, where he has lived all his life. As State Treasurer he will maintain the high standard of State Treasurer Sheatz.

As for Speaker Cox and Major McDowell—the former is the sunniest man in the State and the latter bubbles over with rare, good stories.

Let Centre County Republicans turn out and give our distinguished visitors a royal reception.

The annual convention of the State League of Republican clubs, at Altoona, last week, marked the formal opening of the campaign in Pennsylvania. Stirring addresses were delivered by United States Senators Penrose and Oliver and also by Senator Sisson, and Mr. Stober. Senator Penrose, in his address, predicted a majority of at least 125,000 for the entire Republican ticket in Pennsylvania in November. Senator Penrose was warmly applauded. He said:

"There is no trouble in Pennsylvania this fall. I bring you the cheerful intelligence that in the great Republican Gibraltar of Philadelphia we will give the usual Republican majority for the local ticket. The State will turn up a quarter of a million or more for the election of Sisson, Stober and von Moschzicker.

"I cannot help contrasting conditions tonight with those found here in 1896. I then addressed the voters of the city. Here like in many other cities the industrial plants were closed and thousands walked the streets, wondering where they could get a night's lodging or a meal the next day. No one can forget those terrible scenes.

"Through a lack of familiarity with the conditions many people throughout the land started a cry for the revision of the tariff. By good luck, stalwartism in the Republican party and the aid of our great President, William H. Taft, we were enabled to place a law on the statute books which provide adequately for the interests of the state. We can now march forward to an era of prosperity which will exceed any in our history.

"Pennsylvania Republicans have nothing to apoligize for in this campaign. Our treasury is free of debt and our auditor general's department has shown a wonderful vigilance in the collection of this money which comes from a tax on corporations. There is not a citizen who pays one cent for the maintenance of the state government. The appropriations for charity are many times more than any other state. In the long history of Pennsylvania under Republican administration the state has never lost a dollar by malfeasance or neglect of any of its fiscal officers.

MT. EAGLE'S BIG FIRE.

Leathers' Handle Factory, Two Houses and Barn Burned.

The pretty town of Mt. Eagle was visited by a disastrous fire last Friday afternoon, the handle factory of Earl H. Leathers, the house and store of Franklin Deitz and the barn of John Leathers being totally destroyed. The loss is estimated at about $7,000 with no insurance.

It is not known just how the fire originated. Shortly after 2 o'clock in the afternoon smoke and flames were noticed issuing from under the roof of the handle factory. An alarm was promptly sounded but Mt. Eagle being without fire protection the best efforts that could be put forth to check the flames were those of a willing bucket brigade. Despite the hardest kind of work on the part of volunteers it was impossible to save the handle factory, and the building, together with about 100,000 handles of various kinds, were burned. Some of the machinery was saved.

Mr. Leathers estimated his loss on the factory and contents at about $3,500, with no insurance. He expects to rebuild at once.

From the handle factory the flames spread to the dwelling house and store of Franklin Deitz, and soon both were consumed, entailing a loss of about $3,000, on which there was no insurance.

The Deitz buildings stood west of the factory. To the east and, divided by a 20-foot lot stands the home of Mrs. John B. Leathers. This the men fighting the flames succeeded in saving, although the house was damaged to the extent of about $300. A barn at the rear of the lot was destroyed. There was no insurance.

EIGHT HORSES BURNED

Ricker Brothers' Barn, in East Nittany Valley, Destroyed.

A disastrous fire was that last Friday, in East Nittany Valley, which destroyed the large barn of Rickers Brothers, burning eight horses and one cow. Fortunately a large herd of thoroughbred cows were not in the barn at the time of the fire, having been driven to an adjoining field to graze several hours before the flames were discovered.

In addition to the horses the flames consumed a slaughter house, large wagon sheds and two corn cribs and contents, together with farming implements, butcher wagon, farm wag ons and a buggy.

At the time the barn was destroyed it contained about 40 tons of unthreshed wheat, 50 tons of hay, 200 bushels of oats, and some other grain. It is estimated that the loss is about $3000, partly covered by insurance.

It was rumored that the charred bones of a man were found in the ruins but this could not be verified. Little credence was attached to the rumor.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Ricker and also Charles Ricker were at Philadelphia at the time of the fire, having gone to that city from Allentown, where they attended the fair. They were not aware of the damage caused by the flames until their arrival home on Sunday.

BIG PRICE FOR FARM

Land of Late Joel Struble Sells for $97.50 Per Acre.

A record-price for farms was established at the recent public sale of the farm of the late Joel Struble, near Zion, regarded as one of the choicest in Pennsylvania. The farm contains 124 acres and was sold for $12,090, or $97.50 per acre. Mrs. Isaih Struble was the purchaser. It developed after the sale that she was prepared to pay $100 an acre if necessary.

Fire Near Marsh Creek.

William Shaffer's steam saw mill, located on Marsh Creek, about two miles east of Romola, was destroyed by fire last Thursday morning. The mill had not been in operation for some time and it is supposed that the fire was of incendiary origin. The saws, belting and shafting were ruined. The mill, which will likely be rebuilt, was sawing out lumber last Spring for Harter & McCormick, of Lock Haven.

Foot Ball on Saturday.

The first foot ball game of the season on the home grounds will be played on Saturday afternoon, when the Bucknell Reserves meet the Bellefonte Academy team. The Academy boys have been practicing daily to get themselves into trim and a good game may be expected. The admission will be but 25 cents and a large crowd should be on hand to encourage the boys who are planning to give Bellefonte first class foot ball during the entire season. Don't forget the time and place —Saturday afternoon, at Hughes Field.

Bank Plans Extension.

The First National Bank has planned an extension to the rear of its building, contracting with F. W. Crider for the erection of a building which will include comfort rooms for the many woman patrons of that well known institution. One room will contain writing desks and booths, such as may be found in the banks in the larger cities.

DEATH OF JOHN MEESE SHOCK TO COMMUNITY

Passes Away Suddenly at His Home on Tuesday Afternoon.

PIONEER IN BUSINESS

Heart Failure Ends Successful Career of Well Known Business Man and Prominent Citizen Had Been Ill But Few Hours Funeral Friday.

Seldom does a community experience more of a shock than that which came with the announcement of the sudden death of John Meese, the well known grocer, at his late home, about 3 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon. From one end of the town to the other and, in fact, throughout the county, the word of his death was carried in a remarkably short time, so well and favorably was he known. A few friends only were aware that he had been indisposed and for a time the public could not believe that he had passed away. With the verification of the sad news many messages of sympathy were conveyed to his late home, for by all it was appreciated that Bellefonte had lost one of its best known and most substantial business men and honored citizens.

Mr. Meese was ill but a few hours when an attack of heart failure caused his death. Mrs. Meese was in an adjoining room at the time. A moment or two before that she had been talking with him and he appeared to be resting comfortably. Returning to his bedroom she found that he had fallen into a stupor. Dr. M. J. Locke was telephoned for but he was just then about to enter the house and hearing Mrs. Meese's cries for help hurried to the bedroom. By the time he reached there Mr. Meese was dead.

It was as late as Monday that Mr. Meese was about as usual. Returning home from the store that evening he remarked to Mrs. Meese that he was not feeling very well. He ate a poached egg for his supper after which he seemed to be in much better spirits. Before his usual bedtime, however, he remarked that he was tired and that he thought he would retire. During the night he was restless and seemed unable to sleep. On Tuesday morning he remained in bed, but by no one was it thought that he was suffering with anything but a slightly disordered stomach. During the morning he chatted with Mrs. Meese and also with his son-in-law, J. Will Conley, and several times got up and walked across the room. At noon he seemed to be much improved, eating a light lunch and again talking with Mrs. Meese and Mr. Conley. The latter, after talking over some business matters, returned to the store. Mrs. Meese was working in an adjoining room, stopping every few minutes to join her husband and comment on some passing incident. Suddenly the heart ceased to act and the end came, Mr. Meese apparently sleeping into death.

John Meese was a man of sterling qualities and his death is a loss which will be the more keenly felt by the community in the years to come. Given little to display but adhering strictly to rugged honesty he lived a life which may well serve as an example to all men.

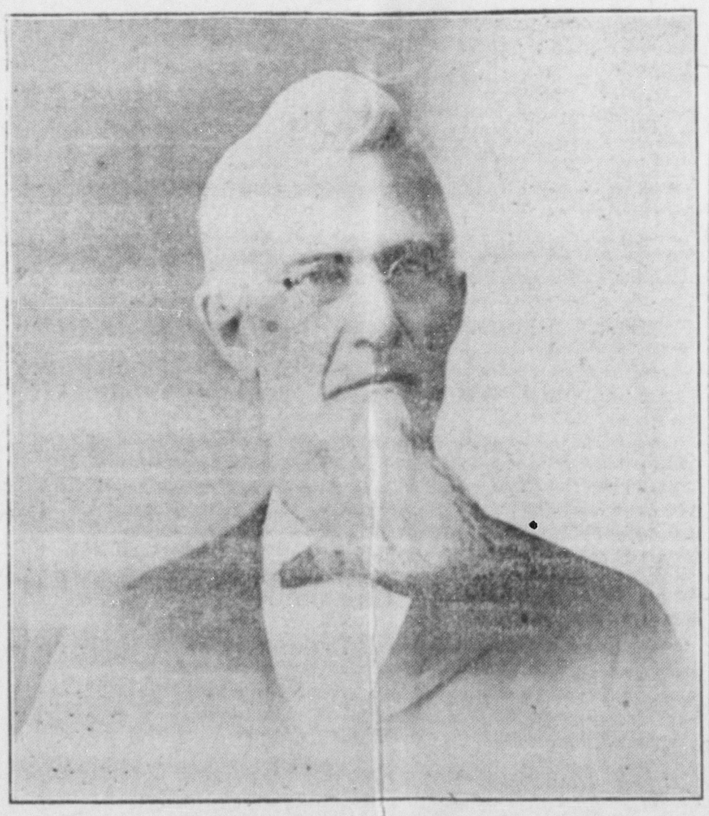
Born near the old Valentine iron works in 1839, John Meese would have been 70 years of age in December, next. He was a son of George and Elizabeth Meese, and with his parents removed to Howard when a boy. It was at that pretty town that he was educated. When a young man he came to Bellefonte and as a clerk in the general store of D. M. Wagner started on what was to be a remarkably successful business career. After working for some time in this store he engaged with the firm of May and Loeb.

It was not long until his determination to start in business for himself led to his opening a store on Allegheny Street, at the site of what is now Gillen's grocery. He was successful there from the start, establishing a business which soon demanded larger quarters. Twenty-three years ago he moved across the street to the site which he occupied to the time of his death. From a modest beginning his business had grown until in his latter years he found himself the head of one of the best known establishments of the kind in Central Pennsylvania.

John Meese was the eldest of six sons and six daughters. He is survived by a widow and one daughter, Mrs. J. Will Conley, and the following sisters and brothers: Jacob, of New York; Lewis, of Pittsburg; Mrs. Regina Rutherford, of Zanesville, Ohio; Mrs. Susan Pletcher, of Howard; Mrs. Susan Morrison, of Williamsport, and Mrs. Nancy Hollar, of Pittsburg.

At the time of her father's death Mrs. Conley, the only surviving child, was at Petersburg, Virginia, where her daughter, Miss Nellie Conley, was about to enter school for the winter. They were summoned home by telegraph. Interment will be made tomorrow at the Union cemetery. The body of Mr. Meese will be laid to rest by the side of a daughter, Jennie, who died of diphtheria when about eight years of age.

To the family and those so sadly afflicted by the death of Mr. Meese we extend our deepest sympathy.



JOHN MEESE,

Pioneer business man and honored citizen who died suddenly at his home on Tuesday afternoon.

RACHAEL LUELLA MEEK.

Death ended a beautiful life and closed a brilliant career when at 7.30 o'clock on Monday evening all that was mortal of Rachael Luella Meek, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. Gray Meek, passed into the great beyond. So few persons knew that her condition was of such a serious nature that the announcement of her death came as a great shock to the entire community. Lulu Meek, as she was best known to a wide circle of friends, was a young woman of many noble qualities. Of a sweet, amiable disposition she won for herself a firm place in the hearts of many who sincerely mourn her death. For a number of years she was an invaluable assistant to her father in the management of the "Democratic Watchman" her work, in fact, being such as to make a deep impress upon the readers of that journal. About six years ago she suffered a nervous collapse from which she never fully recovered. She

ALL EYES TURNED ON CENTRE COUNTY FAIR

Record-Breaking Crowd Expected to be in Attendance.

BIG ONE-RING CIRCUS

Horse Racing, Baloon Ascensions and Livestock Exhibits among the Features Planned for the Big Event—Don't Forget the Date Oct. 5, 6, 7 & 8.

Everything is in readiness for the big Centre County Fair next week. With indications for a record-breaking attendance and plans made for a program more elaborate and attractive than ever this year's exhibition gives promise of being the most successful held in the county.

Don't forget the date----October 5. 6, 7 and 8.

For the accommodation of the large crowds expected to be in attendance return trains will be run to Coburn on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, leaving here at 7 o'clock. Special rates will prevail.

Aside from the farm and livestock exhibits, which alone make the fair well worth attending, there will be an array of entertainments surpassing in interest the great fairs and exhibitions in the larger cities. The horse racing will be the finest ever witnessed in Bellefonte, many fast horses having been entered for the several events.

A special feature during the week will be a one-ring circus in front of the grandstand. It will be a strictly up-to-date circus, with a fine program each day of the fair. This alone will be of sufficient interest to amuse the large crowd, but in addition there will be a merry-go-round, the "ocean wave," baloon ascension, etc.

The management have arranged for the exhibition of 25 holsteins from the Lewisburg fair, and also of valuable Jerseys and guernseys from State College. These, with the other exhibitions of livestock, will make a feature excelling anything of the kind attempted in recent years.

BRUCE UNDERWOOD'S DEATH

Dies at Two Harbors, Minn., From Injuries on Railroad.

The sad news of the death of Bruce Underwood was received here on Saturday, death having come to relieve him of his sufferings in the hospital, at Two Harbors, Minn. As announced last week in "The Republican" he met with an accident on the railroad near Two Harbors, being injured so badly that it was found necessary to amputate both feet. He was removed to the hospital and every attention possible given to save his life but about one o'clock, on Saturday morning, he passed away. He was a son of Zepheniah Underwood, who for many years was conductor on the Lewisburg & Tyrone division of the Pennsylvania Railroad. The body was brought to Bellefonte on Monday by Jesse Underwood, and interment made here on Tuesday.

HOMER JUSTICE KILLED

AS HONORARY MEMBERS

Ex-Confederate Soldiers Welcomed into Gregg Post 95.

At a regular meeting of Gregg Post No. 95, Dept. of Penna., G. A. R., Saturday night Sept. 25, the regular order of business was varied by a rather unusual occurrence in the history of the Post. Gregg Post has for years had the honor of having one ex-confederate honorary member, the courtesy having been extended to Rev. John Hewitt, during his former pastorate of St. John's P. E. church in Bellefonte. The annual meeting of the Veteran Club at Centre Hall, Sept. 14th, proved that at least two more ex-confederates, were entitled to the honor of membership in Gregg Post, and it was therefore proposed by the adjutant of the Post, that Col. W. R. Teller and Aaron Katz be placed on the roll as honorary members.

Col. W. R. Teller needs no introduction to the people of Bellefonte, suffice it to say that he belonged to a noted organization, viz: "The Richmond Grays," composed largely of the elite of Richmond, Va., and numbering in its ranks many famous men. The organization became a part of the 12th Virginia—Mahone's Brigade, Anderson's Division, A. P. Hill's Corps, Army of Northern Va.

Mr. Katz, also well and favorably known in Bellefonte, was Sergeant Major of the 53rd N. C. Inf., and was attached to Daniel's Brigade, Rodes Division, Ewell's Corps. Army of Northern Va.

Members of the G. A. R. will remember something of the fighting qualities of the above organizations having met and fought them on many bloody fields.

Honor to the Brave of every Nation and clime!

A second pleasing incident was the presentation to Gregg Post, by Mrs. George F. Harris, of the splendid painting of the Battle of Gain's Mills, Va., June 27, 1562. A noted French artist, who was presentand participated in the battle, made and presented the splendid picture to our lamented war Governor, Andrew G. Curtin.

The thanks of the Post were ordered extended to Mrs. Harris for so kindly remembering those who estimate the picture at its full value.

McALLISTER SCHOLARSHIPS

Detailed Plans of $10,000 Legacy to State College.

Brief mention was made in a small part of last week's edition of "The Republican" of the $10,000 gift by Dr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Hayes to State College for Freshmen scholarships. The information was not received in time to enable us to present it in the full edition of "The Republican" and we therefore very gladly give space to it this week. Mrs. Hayes is a daughter of Hugh A. McAllister, one of the founders of State College. It is proposed that the income from the $10,000 be applied to five scholarships, of the legacy value of $100 each. These will be known as the "McAllister Scholarships", and will be limited to Freshmen.

According to the plan outlined the five scholarships will be given to the five counties in Pennsylvania showing the highest ratio of population of the county to the number of students from that county attending State College the preceding year. The nominating board will comprise the county superintendent of schools and the principals of the high schools in each county. Where this happens to be an equal number the board will be enlarged by an additional member to be appointed by the President of State College. All nominations will be made by competitive examination, which shall take into consideration conduct, habits, scholarship and needs of financial assistance. State College reserves the right to reject any nomination and also to revoke a scholarship for cause.

Y. M. C. A. Reception.

A reception to which the people of Bellefonte are cordially invited will be held at 7.30 o'clock tonight at the Y. M. C. A. This is the first function of the kind since Secretary Weston assumed charge of the Y. M. C. A. work in Bellefonte and it is hoped that the public will demonstrate its interest by attending. The recent organization of the Ladies' Auxiliary, to aid in advancing Y. M. C. A. work gives promise of considerable activity this winter in the noble cause of helping young men.

Grange Speakers.

Joel A. Herr and Charles H. Rich, of Clinton County, are among those delegated by Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Martin as speakers at farmers' institutes to be held in the second section which includes Centre, Blair, Union, Clinton, Montour, Northumberland, Clearfield, Indiana, Cambria, Snyder, Juniata, Mifflin, Huntingdon, Fulton and Bedford counties.

VISIT OF CANDIDATES.

"Our candidate for state treasurer has had long service in the legislature and good business training. He is one of the great army of men who offered his life in the preservation of the navy. I am told that he is the most popular individual in Lancaster, the third Republican county of the state. He is a fitting representative to uphold the high standard of honesty and excellence of the treasury department. In Senator Sisson we have a man whose legal training and long ervice in the senate makes him an ideal incumbent of the auditor general's office."

Senator Oliver was also accorded an enthusiastic greeting when presented to the convention. He vigorously defended the protective tariff declaring that it was necessary in order that American workingmen may receive wages to enable them to keep their families and educate their children. Senator Oliver said:

"It gives me great pleasure to take part in this enthusiastic gathering of the earnest, active workers in the field of Pennsylvania politics. It is the members of this league and men like you, to whom the Republicans of Pennsylvania are indebted for their matchless organization, through whose labors the party has grown within the last generation from a mere fighting majority to a position of overwhelming supremacy. I am not one of those who subscribe to the doctrine that to their victor belong the spoils. That doctrine was first enunciated by a Democrat, was practiced by the Democratic party through every administration from Jackson to Buchanan, and never until the Republican party came into power was any other policy followed except that of cleaning out the offices on the advent of each administration and installing adherents of the new one. But while I am not an advocate of this doctrine, I do believe that he who works in the vineyard should eat of the fruits thereof, and that no man should be disqualified for any office, no matter how high, simply because he has served earnestly and faithfully in the ranks in behalf of the party in whose principles he believes. I believe that the term 'politician' should be one of praise and not of reproach, that every inducement should be given our young men to work for their party, and that an earnest, active interest in public affairs should be encouraged in all young men as they approach the voting age. So much, then, for politics and politicians in general. I now want to say a few words with regard to the politics and policies of this great party to which you and I belong.

"Of all the great fundamental principles which were declared in the early platforms of the Republican party, only one survives. The extinction of human slavery, the salvation of the Union, the preservation of the national credit, the establishment of a firm and stable basis for our currency—all these battles have been fought and won by the Republican party and must take their place in the graveyard of dead issues. But in the platform of 1860, on which Abraham Lincoln was elected, and in every succeeding platform of the party, is found a declaration in favor of establishing such tariff duties as would protect American industry and American labor from undue foreign competition. Every battle that has been fought on this issue has been won by our party.

"Under the banner of protection we have never gone to defeat. Some of our people are disposed to look on protection as a temporary means of establishing our industries, and think the time will come when we will no longer need a tariff wall to keep out the products of the old world labor. I confess I once thought this, but I am now convinced of my error. I believe that in most of our industries we could compete successfully with Europe if we had the same, or even approximately the same wage scale that prevails there. But we have not, and I pray to God we never may have. The wages that obtain today are none too high to enable our workingmen to keep their families as they ought to be kept and educate their children as they ought to be educated. I believe that a tariff is today more necessary in this country than ever before. The cost of living is higher than it ever was, and is constantly advancing, and though we are day by day cheapening our products by labor-saving appliances, the rest of the world is by no means idle.

"There is no doubt that the unparalleled prosperity which followed the passage of the Dingley bill in 1897 led many others to feel that they could beat the world and no favors asked. This feeling is unquestionably what led to the agitation in the west in favor of tariff revision, and culminated in a promise by the Republican national convention last year that the congress would be called in extra session to consider that question. I now believe that this promise was unnecessary and in no wise demanded by the people. I believe that the great mass of Republican voters, east and west, were satisfied with the existing tariff, under which our country had so long enjoyed unexampled prosperity, and that if it had not been for the agitation of the question by men desiring to usurp party leadership they would have beeu content to let well enough alone. Nor do I believe that the majority of our people construed this promise to mean that the tariff duties would be cut so low as to invite or encourage foreign competition.

"In my opinion, the people defeated Bryan and elected Taft, not because they wanted downward revision, but because they feared it. If they desired a radical revision downward, why in the name of common sense did they not vote for the Democratic party, which could be trusted to give them the real thing? I take issue, therefore, with those so-called Republicans who, at the last session of congress deserted their party associates, and on every test vote stood with their party's enemies, because they pretended to believe that the platform promises were not being kept.

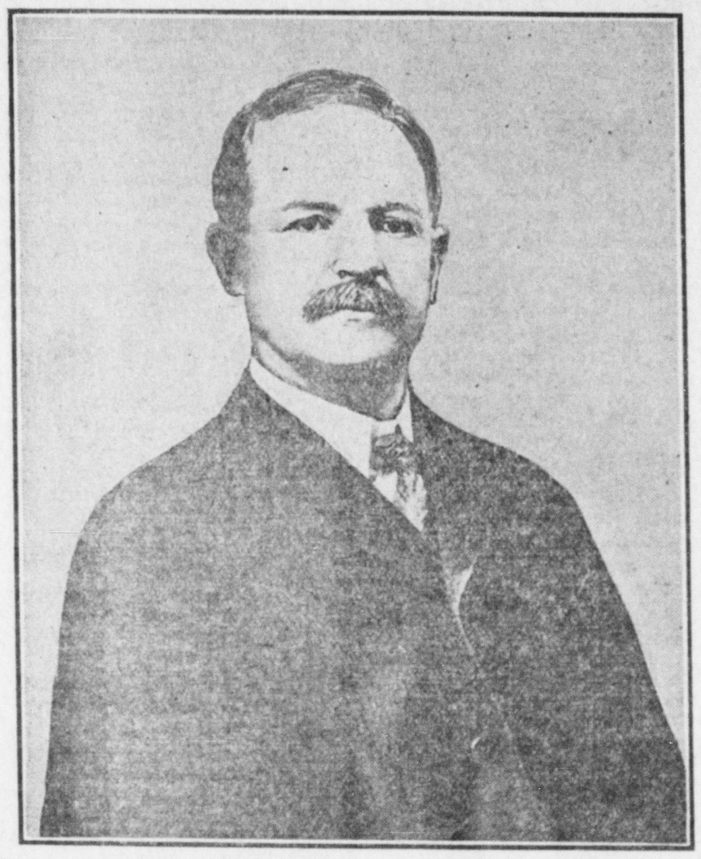
"Most of these men in their speeches, of which they were not sparing, proclaimed loudly their adherence to the principle of protection, but in their votes they invariably repudiated it. They were in favor of the Maine law, but against its enforcement. While they spoke with the voice of Jacob, their hands were the hands of Esau.

"The Payne bill, as finally adopted, is a good bill. If there is anything wrong with it, it is that it goes too far in reducing duties. In the course of the debate in the senate I expressed the fear that some of the rates that were recommended, and finally adopted, would open the markets of our seacoast cities, and especially those of the Pacific coast, to foreign competition. That I was right in this is shown by a letter received only a few days ago by one of the leading independent steel manufacturers of Pittsburg from a customer in California. It is dated at Los Angeles, September 6. I will read it:

Dear Sir:—We have been offered some foreign steel at a very attractive figure, a figure that is so low that we know that it will be impossible for your firm, or any other American firm, to meet, and we are not asking you to do so, but we want your permission to place an order for this foreign steel. As you know, it is always our intention to deal with the American mills, and especially yourselves; still the competition is so close, and San Francisco is importing a large quantity of this foreign material, which enables them to be strong competitors of ours, and to meet them on an equal footing we see no other way than to put in an order for this foreign steel; but we do not want to do anything which will endanger the very pleasant relations that exist between us, and for this reason before placing this order we are writing you personaliy to get your views in this matter. Kindly let me hear from you at your earliest opportunity.

"The gentleman who gave me this letter informed me that the freight rates from Antwerp to the Pacific coast were much lower than those from Pittsburg—enough so to sweep away all the advantage derived from the present tariff on some articles of manufacture and that they are reluctantly compelled to face the fact that on these articles they must give up the market to their foreign competitors. I am glad to say that this relates only to a few commodities and that it is not universal.

"Under the new tariff I do not believe that there are many industries in Pennsylvania which will seriously suffer. Every interest of our state was carefully looked after by our representatives in both houses of congress, and in this connection I think full credit should be given the senior senator from Pennsylvania for his labors in behalf of his state and country during the four months that the bill was pending in the senate His position on the finance committe and his long experience gave him a commanding place in the councils of our party, which he used to the utmost for the benefit of our imperiled industries. He literally worked day and night for our protection, and those who were in Washington during that trying period, and who were brought face to face with the problems before us, can testify how accessible he was to everybody and how solicitous for the interests of our state, whether the man who sought his aid was friend or foe."



SENATOR A. E. SISSON, of Erie.

Popular Republican Nominee for Auditor General who will be tendered a reception at the Bush House tonight.

Got Too Familiar.

A story told of Justice Brewer concerns a trip he made to his old home in Kansas, accompanied by Mrs. Brewer. In Washington a justice of the supreme court is spoken of as "Mr. Justice," and that is the title Mrs. Brewer always has heard. When they reached Chicago, however, the "Mr." was dropped and the jurist was referred to as "Justice Brewer." At Omaha some old friends called him "David J.," and when they crossed the Kansas line some former neighbors referred to him as "David."

"Let's go home," suggested Mrs. Brewer.

"Why?" asked the justice.

"Because, dear," Mrs. Brewer replied, "I am afraid if we go any farther they will be calling you 'Davie.'"—Cleveland Leader.

Cure For Disconsolate Lovers.

Somebody has dug out of an old book of the time of Queen Elizabeth the following advice to a slighted and despondent lover:

Tye one end of a rope righte over a beame
And make a slippe noose at the other extreame.
Just under the beame lett a bucket be sett;
On it lett the lovier most manfullie gett.
Right over his heade be left the snicket be gott
And under his eare well fastened the knott.
The buckett kicked cleare, lett him take a full swinge
And leave alle the reste of the worke to the stringe!

ROOSEVELT TELLS OF AFRICAN GAME TRAILS

Interesting Descriptions of Incidents of His Trip.

MANY WILD ANIMALS

Says Journey into Wilds of Africa is Like Excursion Through Zoological Gardens—Describes His Ride on Cowcatcher of Engine.

Former President Roosevelt describes his experiences in his hunting trip in Africa in an article in Scribner's for October. The article is entitled "African Game Trails", of which the following are extracts:

The day after we landed we boarded the train to take what seems to me, as I think it would to most men fond of natural history, the most interesting railway journey in the world. It was Governor Jackson's special train, and in addition to his own party and ours there was only Selous; and we travelled with the utmost comfort through a naturalist's wonderland. All civilized governments are now realizing that it is their duty here and there to preserve unharmed tracts of wild nature, with thereon the wild things the destruction of which means the destruction of half the charm of wild nature. The English Government has made a large game reserve of much of the region on the way to Nairobi, stretching far to the south, and one mile to the north of the track. The reserve swarms with game; it would be of little value except as a reserve; and the attraction it now offers to travellers renders it an asset of real consequence to the whole colony.

On our train the locomotive was fitted with a comfortable seat across the cowcatcher, and on this, except at meal-time, I spent most of the hours of daylight, usually in company with Selous, and often with Governor Jackson, to whom the territory and the game were alike familiar. The first afternoon we did not see many wild animals, but birds abounded, and the scenery was both beautiful and interesting. A black-and-white hornbill, feeding on the track, rose so late that we nearly caught it with our hands; guinea-fowl and francolin, and occasionally bustard, rose near by; brilliant rollers, sun-birds, bee-eaters, and weaver-birds flew beside us, or sat unmoved among the trees as the train passed. In the dusk we nearly ran over a hyena; a year or two previously the train actually did run over a lioness one night, and the conductor promptly in telegraphic triumph. In fact, there have been continually mishaps such as could only happen to a railroad in the Pleistocene.

Next morning we were in the game country, and as we sat on the seat over the cowcatcher it was literally like passing through a vast zoological garden. Indeed no such railway journey can be taken on any other line in any other land. At one time we passed a herd of a dozen or so of great giraffes, cows and calves, cantering along through the open woods a couple of hundred yards to the right of the train. Again, still closer, four water-buck cows, their big ears thrown forward, stared at us without moving until we had passed. Hartebeests were everywhere; one herd was on the track, and when the engine whistled they busked and sprang with ungainly agility and galloped clear of the danger. A long-tailed straw-colored monkey ran from one tree to another. Huge black ostriches appeared from time to time. Once a troop of impalla, close by the track, took fright; and as the beautiful creatures fled we saw now one and now another bound clear over the high bushes. A herd of zebra clattered across a cutting of the line not a hundred yards ahead of the train; the whistle hurried their progress, but only for a moment, and as we passed they were already turning round to gaze. The wild creatures were in their sanctuary, and they knew it. Some of the settlers have at times grumbled at this game reserve being kept of such size; but surely it is one of the most valuable possessions the country could have. The lack of water in parts, the prevalence in other parts of diseases harmful to both civilized man and domestic cattle, render this great tract of country the home of all homes for the wild creatures of the waste. The protection given these wild creatures is genuine, not nominal; they are preserved, not for the pleasure of the few, but for the good of all who choose to see this strange and attractive spectacle; and from this nursery and breeding-ground the overflow keeps up the stock of game in the adjacent land, to the benefit of the settler to whom the game gives fresh meat, and to the benefit of the whole country because of the attraction it furnishes to all who desire to visit a veritable happy hunting ground.

Our hunt after wildbeest this afternoon was successful; but though by velt law each animal was mine, because I hit it first, yet in reality the credit was communistic, so to speak, and my share was properly less than that of others. I first tried to get up to a solitary old bull, and after a good deal of manoeuvring, and by taking advantage of a second rain squall, I got a standing shot at him at him at four hundred yards, and hit him, but too far back. Although keeping a good distance away, he tacked and veered so, as he ran, that by much running myself I got various other shots at him, at very long range, but missed them all, and he finally galloped over a distant ridge, his long tail switching, seemingly not much the worse. We followed on horseback; for I hate to let any wounded thing escape to suffer. But meanwhile he had run into view of Kermit; and Kermit—who is of an age and build which better fit him for successful breakneck galloping over unknown country dotted with holes and bits of rotten ground—took up the chase with enthusiasm. Yet it was sunset, and after a run of six or eight miles, that he finally ran into and killed the tough old bull, which had turned to bay, snorting and tossing its horns.

Meanwhile I managed to get within three hundred and fifty yards of a herd, and picked out a large cow which was unaccompanied by a calf. Again my bullet went too far back; and I could not hit the animal at that distance as it ran. But after going half a mile it lay down, and would have been secured without difficulty if a wretched dog had not run forward and put it up; my horse was a long way back, but Pease, who had been looking on at a distance, was mounted, and sped after it. By the time I had reached my horse Pease was out of sight; but riding hard for some miles I overtook him, just before the sun went down, standing by the cow which he had ridden down and slain. It was long after nightfall before we reached camp, ready for a hot bath and a good supper. As always thereafter with anything we shot, we used the meat for food and preserved the skins for the National Museum.

Aisle of the Car In a Railroad Wreck.

A veteran railroad man gave a piece of valuable advice not long ago.

"If you ever get into a wreck," he said, "and have time to follow out this suggestion remember this: Always stand in the aisle. Most of the injuries that are suffered occur because the victim is crushed between the seats. If you are in the aisle you may be thrown forward and bruised a little, but there is much less chance of receiving serious burts. It isn't always possible to get out of your seat before the crash comes, but if it is follow that advice."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Use For Arithmetic.

"I studied 'rithmetic," replied the office boy, "'cause I wanted to know how to figure de battin' averages."—Chicago Record-Herald.

GREAT MILITARY EVENT

U. S. Army Soldiers in Spectacular Exhibition at Albany, N. Y.

What promises to be the event of the year in military circles and will give the citizens an opportunity of witnessing the work of the Regular Army, will take place in Albany, N. Y., when the United States Army Military Encampment and tournament opens this week commencing October 4th. Handsomely engraved invitations have been received by Governor Stuart and Adjutant General Thomas J. Stewart from Mayor Henry F. Snyder, of Albany, requesting their attendance at the tournament.

Troops from the various Departments of the East representing every branch of the service will be assembled at Albany for a week and daily exhibitions will be given showing the soldier in actual warfare. Particularly interesting will be the Calvalry and Artillery drills, the rapidity of action by the Calvalry and Artillery drills being almost equal to that shown in moving pictures.

The infantry, the engineers and hospital corps will also play a prominent part in the tournament demonstrating the importance of their work in actual service.

The troops to attend the tournament are:

One battalion of the 24th Infantry of Madison Barracks, N. Y.

Infantry, one battalion, one band, machine gun and platoon of the 5th Infantry from Plattsburg Barracks, N. Y.

Cavalry, one squadron and band of the 10th Cavalry from Fort Ethan, Allen, Vt.

Field Artillery, one battery from Fort Myer, Va.

Engineers, one battery from Washington Barracks, Washington, D. C.

Wagon and pack train, one wagon train complete and one pack train.

Hospital Corps, one company from Fort Niagara, N. Y.

Subsistence Department, detachment of cooks and bakers from Washington Barracks, D. C.

Acting Secretary of War, Robert Shaw Oliver, will attend the tournament and General Leonard Wood will make Albany his headquarters during the entire week. Colonel Calvin D. Cowles, of the 5th Infantry, will be in command of the troops.

Albany's days in the Hudson-Fulton celebration will be observed on October 7th and 8th, with land and naval parades. Electrical arches and the Hudson-Fulton colors will form the decorations which will surpass those of any cities along the Hudson river.

Unique Payment for Hat.

The Postoffice Department is about to turn over to a poor and aged Scotchman in Boston a fund of $146 sent him anonymously through the mails, which [illegible] in the Dead Letter office because the generous sender forgot to affix two-cent stamps to the various letters in which the money made the journey through the mails. At regular intervals during the last five years one of these letters each containing a $1 bill, has been received at the Boston postoffice, until a total of $146 has come.

The addressee formerly was employed as a silk hatmaker at the address given on the letters. While he was employed at the store he received numerous letters containing money; but as the sender wrote in a disguised hand and did not give his name, the Scotchman never was able to ascertain the identity of his friend. Finally the hatmaker lost his job, but the anonymous letters continued to go to the same address, always unstamped, and hence, under the law, they were turned into the Dead Letter office.

Postoffice inspectors investigated the case and finally located the Scotchman. They learned that he had received similar anonymous letters before and the fund of $146 probably will be turned over to him. The old hatmaker, who is 77 years old and a resident of Boston since 1871, recalled to the inspectors that long years ago he made a silk hat for a man who failed to pay him for it. He thinks that possibly this person wishing to repay the debt, has taken this strange method of doing so.

Woman's World

MRS. FREDERICK A. COOK.

Her Reluctance to Talk of Husband's Discovery Explained.

To transpose the poet, "wives of great men" all—most all—remind us that they have helped to make possible in one direction or another the achievements of their husbands. Mrs. Cook, the modest and very retiring wife of one of the discoverers of the north pole, is no exception to this rule. A friend of the Cook family, speaking of the reluctance of the explorer's wife to discuss her husband's exploits, says: "I think that Mrs. Cook is merely overcome by the magnitude of the news that came as unexpectedly to her as to the rest of the world. There is no reason why she should be unwilling to discuss her husband and his achievements, and she is well qualified to do so.

"Mrs. Cook was of great assistance to her husband in his work. She helped him in his literary labors, and I have seen her surrounded with books of reference, doing much of the laborious research necessary for articles such as her husband has written. Although Dr. Cook's absence and the depletion of the family finances resulting from his expedition have been hard for Mrs. Cook and her daughters, I have never heard her complain. She has always been confident of her husband's success and ready to make sacrifices to help him.

MRS. COOK AND HER DAUGHTERS.

"At present I believe that she wants time to adjust herself to new conditions and fully realize the significance of her position before she talks for publication."

On the other hand, Mrs. Peary, wife of the rival finder of the pole, has played too prominent a part in the career of her husband, with which the world is familiar, to need mention at this day. Mrs. Peary has gone into the frozen regions with the arctic expeditions conducted by her husband as far as it was safe for a woman to live. And her daughter, now a girl of sixteen, was born in the arctic country and is called, much to her present disgust, "the snow baby."

Mrs. Peary met her husband at North Sydney, where she had secured rooms at the hotel with a view of the bay, so she could see the Roosevelt, Commander Peary's ship, when it first put in an appearance.

Mrs. Cook's comment was brief and singularly like the expression of Mrs. Peary on the news of Dr. Cook's achievement. She said:

"If Commander Peary has discovered the pole, as I am sure my husband has, I heartily congratulate him."

Woman.

The whisper of a beautiful woman can be heard farther than the loudest call of duty.

It is woman's way. They always love color better than form, rhetoric better than logic, priestcraft better than philosophy and flourishes better than figures.

Nature makes fools; women make coxcombs.

Women are apt to see chiefly the defects of a man of talent and the merits of a fool.

Woman is more constant in hatred than in love.

Woman is an idol that man worships before he throws it down.

A beautiful woman is the paradise of the eyes, the hell of the soul and the purgatory of the purse.

The highest mark of esteem a woman can give a man is to ask his friendship, and the most signal proof of her indifference is to offer him hers.

A woman is seldom tenderer to a man than immediately after she has deceived him.

Friendships of women are the cushions wherein they stick their pins.—"Woman and the Wits."

Russia Now Has Woman Lawyer.

Dr. Katharina Fleischer has just been admitted to the bar in Russia and will practice her profession in St. Petersburg. She is the first woman lawyer in the czar's dominions, and she passed the final examinations with high honors. She met with much opposition when she first announced her intention of studying law. Prejudice was strong even from influential members of her sex. She persisted in her ambition against all obstacles, however, and came out triumphant. It is her hope to fight the legal battles of women, and she seeks them especially as clients. Dr. Fleischer is an ardent suffragette and predicts she will live to see women sitting in the douma.

OBSTINATE FRECKLES.

Apply These Lotions and "the Beauty Spots" Will Disappear.

Take some English mustard with enough lemon juice to form a paste as for a poultice. Apply this to the face four nights in succession. Wash off in the morning. The freckles will generally disappear and likewise the redness.

Another remedy is to take rainwater and add as much pulverized alum as the water will dissolve. Dab this on the freckles several times a day.

Still another method is to use half a teacupful of rainwater and two teaspoonfuls of powdered borax. Allow the borax to dissolve and with this wash the affected parts twice a day. This is never failing remedy for removing freckles for people possessing certain textures of skin.

With others the following remedy is effective: Two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice, one of powdered borax and one of sugar. Mix and allow to stand a day or two. Then apply two or three times a day.

The following remedy is vouched for by medical authority and is very simple: Break the stem of a dandelion. The juice which exudes should be wiped over the face twice daily, morning and evening preferably. Of course the larger the stem the more juice can be extracted, which, by the way, should be milky in color.

As most of the remedies for the cure of freckles contain astringent properties, which are more or less drying to the skin, it will need to be protected from becoming too harsh and dry while using the remedies. A good cold cream of equal parts of rosewater and glycerin with a few drops of carbolic acid may be applied between the application for freckles. Should the skin be naturally moist or oily none of the above remedies if used judiciously will be found too drying. A soothing cream to use for this purpose is made of one ounce of benzoinated oxide of zinc ointment and two drams of spirits of camphor.

Where the treatment for obstinate freckles has been tried there is nothing more soothing than the cream which is skimmed from milk. This is a natural substitute for a cold cream and is very cooling.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

The girl who perspires will find that she will aid matters immensely if she will carry a tiny vial of rosewater and alcohol.

Cold water dashed on the face and chest in the morning gives the same tonic effect of a cold plunge in the morning without the shock.

A simple remedy for burns is made by adding to a cupful of olive oil a teaspoonful of carbolic acid. Apply bandage soaked in the mixture.

Relaxation is the secret of taking the mental, moral and physical kinks out of one's system in the warm weather. It will take all the unsightly lines from your face and prevent new ones from forming.

All too frequently is a bottle of poison mistaken for something not deadly. One way to help avoid this danger is to put a brass headed tack in the cork of every bottle containing poison. Impress this fact on the family. One can know immediately whether the bottle holds poison simply by the sense of touch. This knowledge is especially valuable when you are looking for a bottle at night.

If any one of the family is so unfortunate as to sprain his or her ankle this summer you will find that you can make the doctor's part easier by soaking the afflicted member at once in hot water. This relieves the congestion, and by the time the doctor arrives with the bandages the sprain will be ready for treatment. It is better not to wait a moment to find out how serious the injury is, for hot water can do no harm, and the patient's suffering will be greatly lessened by prompt action.

For any inflammation of the eye which comes on suddenly cold water soothes the pain. After persistent trouble very hot water will relieve the pain and reduce the swelling. The eye cup is the most convenient way of bathing the eye, for the eyeball is washed directly. The mouth of the eye cup is oval, which fits around the eye at the margin of the orbit. The eye may be opened into the lotion. A weak solution of boracic acid, 3 per cent, may be safely used. The acid must be fresh and clear, however. Tears are the natural method of cleansing this organ.

Cures For Insomnia.

Sufferers from insomnia, says one who has had some experience with this trouble, should avoid sweet deserts at night as well as tea, coffee and greasy foods. Whether it is better to retire with an empty or partly full stomach can be determined only by experiment in each individual case. One of the best ways, says the same authority, to draw the blood from the brain before retiring is to take a moderately swift walk, and if there is still difficulty in getting to sleep a tepid bath and a gentle rub will bring the blood from the brain to the surface of the body. If the cause of sleeplessness is susceptibility to sound, stuffing ears with medicated cotton will be useful.

A Japanese Beauty.

The most beautiful woman in Japan is Princess Nashimoto, whose husband is first cousin to the mikado. She is twenty-seven years old, petite, fascinating and has all the vivacity of a well bred Frenchwoman. She attracted admiration in Paris when she and her husband recently visited that capital.

Schedule for the Amendments.

Section 12. That no inconvenience may arise from the changes in the Constitution of the Commonwealth, and in order to carry the same into complete operation, it is hereby declared that—

In the case of officers elected by the people, all terms of office fixed by act of Assembly at an odd number of years shall each be lengthened one year, but the Legislature may change the length of the term, provided the terms for which such officers are elected shall always be for an even number of years.

The above extension of official terms shall not affect officers elected at the general election of one thousand nine hundred and eight; nor any city, ward, borough, township, or election division officers, whose terms of office, under existing law, end in the year one thousand nine hundred and ten.

In the year one thousand nine hundred and ten the municipal election shall be held on the third Tuesday of February, as heretofore; but all officers chosen at that election to an office the regular term of which is two years, and also all election officers and assessors chosen at that election, shall serve until the first Monday of December in the year one thousand nine hundred and eleven. All officers chosen at that election to offices the term of which is now four years, or is made four years by the operation of these amendments or this schedule, shall serve until the first Monday of December in the year one thousand nine hundred and thirteen. A Convert.

An old Cambridge friend of mine who had a good deal of the wisdom of the serpent in him had a farmer in his parish in Norfolk whom he could not get to church. Whenever he pressed upon him his neglect or his bad example he was always met with the same excuse, "You be too young and do not know enough to teach such as I." At last he gave up the farmer in despair. But one day he happened to pass by the farm while his parishioner was engaged in killing a fine pig. My friend said: "What a pig! Why, he weighs thirty-four stone!" "What dost thou know of pigs?" replied the farmer. "I only wish he weighed as much." When they next met the farmer, to his surprise, told my friend that the pig had been found to weigh just thirty-four stone. He added, much to my friend's gratification, "And thou wilt see me at church next Sunday, parson."—London Globe.

A Problem In Mathematics.

The town of Sturgis, in Mississippi, is the only round square town in existence. By legal enactment the circle has been squared, and the mathematician may now proceed to calculate the area of a square circle. In the laws of Mississippi for the year 1886, on page 682, is found the following:

"An act to incorporate the town of Sturgis, in Oktibbeha county, Mississippi.

"Section 1. Be it enacted by the legislature of the state of Mississippi that the town of Sturgis, in the county of Oktibbeha, is hereby incorporated and that the corporate limits of said town shall be as follows: Beginning at the quarter stake in front of Caleb Hannah's residence and running 600 yards in every direction, making said corporate limits 1,200 yards square."

Thus the circle is squared by the solemn declaration of the law.—Youth's Companion.

Turks and Animals.

In the matter of kindness to animals it is said that the Turk cannot be surpassed. Thus at Stamboul the wandering dogs are treated with great gentleness, and when puppies come into the world they are lodged with their mother at the side of the street in improvised kennels made out of old boxes lined with straw and bits of carpet. And frequently when a young Turk happens to be flush of money he goes to the nearest baker's shop and buys a quantity of bread, which he distributes among the dogs of the quarter, who testify their gratitude by jumping up at him with muddy paws and sniffing muzzles.

His Opening.

Oatcake—What be your son Jake a-goin' ter dew now that he hez left college?

Heyrix—I dunno yit. He's talkin' some of bein' a doctor, but I've heern tell ez heow thar be a heap uv money in bankruptcy, so mebby he'll try that fer a spell.—Chicago News.

His Bald Spot.

Little Margie's father had a bald spot. While kissing him at bedtime one evening she said:

"Stoop down, papa. I want to kiss you on the head where the lining shows."

The greatest of all faults, I should say, is to be conscious of none.—Carlyle.

Cured Hay Fever and Summer Cold.

A. S. Nusbaum, Batesville, Indiana, writes: "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed only to aggravate it. Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar. It quickly cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success." Sold by C. M. Parrish.

Nervous Break-Down

Nerve energy is the force that controls the organs of respiration, circulation, digestion and elimination. When you feel weak, nervous, irritable, sick, it is often because you lack nerve energy, and the process of rebuilding and sustaining life is interfered with. Dr. Miles' Nervine has cured thousands of such cases, and will we believe benefit if not entirely cure you. Try it.

"My nervous system gave away completely, and left me on the verge of the grave. I tried skilled physicians but got no permanent relief. I got so bad I had to give up my business. I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. In a few days I was much better, and I continued to improve until entirely cured. I am in business again, and never miss an opportunity to recommend this remedy." MRS. W. L. BURKE, Myrtle Creek, Oregon.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a brick dust sediment, or settling, stringy or milky appearance often indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back are also symptoms that tell you the kidneys and bladder are out of order and need attention.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills almost every wish in correcting rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. Corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

Home of Swamp-Root.

You may have a sample bottle sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Mention this paper and remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

REPUBLICAN TICKET.

State.

Supreme Court Justice.
JUDGE ROBERT VON MOSCHZISKER, of Phila.

Auditor General,
A. E. SISSON, of Erie.

State Treasurer,
J. A. STOBER, of Lancaster.

County.

Jury Commissioner,
JOHN D. DECKER, of Potter Twp.

"Non-Partisan" Buncombe.

Once more there comes to hand evidence of the activity of the friends of Mr. Cyrus LaRue Munson to impress upon the public mind that he is a "non-partisan" candidate for Justice of the Supreme Court. Every county in the State is being flooded with personal letters urging support for Mr. Munson and dwelling on the "non-partisan" phase of his candidacy.

Is or is not Mr. Munson a "non-partisan" candidate? Was he nominated as such?

Mr. Munson was nominated by the Democratic State convention which adopted a platform with the following as its initial plank:

"We, the representatives of the Pennsylvania Democracy in convention assembled, do hereby declare our devotion to the essential principles of the Democratic faith which have been the guarantee of our liberties since the foundation of the nation."

It would require the wildest flight of the imagination to discover anything "non-partisan" in the foregoing platform and it is on this and no other that Mr. Munson and his colleagues stand. Mr. Munson was nominated by a convention controlled body and soul by Colonel Guffey. In political circles it was an open secret for months in advance of the convention that Mr. Munson was to be named. The action of the convention is the best evidence as to whether or not there was a slate.

Mr. Munson is a lawyer of ability, is a man of culture and refinement and, as is his right, aspires to the bench of the highest court in Pennsylvania. But let his managers be open and above-board in presenting his candidacy. Their course in urging him as everything but a Democrat is inspired by the foregone conclusion that he must obtain Republican votes to be elected. Hence the "non-partisan" game to catch the unsuspecting Republican voter.

Since his nomination Mr. Munson has been aggressively advancing his candidacy by presenting himself at public gatherings and other functions. At the recent grangers' picnic he spent a day on the grounds in the company of Democratic County Chairman Zerby and other local Democratic managers. There was nothing improper in this, but we call attention to it merely to emphasize one point. Had Mr. Munson's opponent, Judge von Moschzisker, the Republican nominee, presented himself at the grangers' picnic and engaged in a day of hand-shaking among the voters he would have been charged with the tactics of the cheap politician and there would have been a mighty chorus from the Democrats to keep the bench free from politics.

Judge von Moschzisker is not conducting a personal campaign. His cource is strictly in keeping with the dignity of the high position to which he honorably aspires. He will be elected at a time in his life when he may serve his term of twenty-one years and the last years of his service will not be weakened by the infirmities of old age.

As to Illegal Checks.

To the surprise of business men of the country it is learned that the penal code adopted at the last session of congress puts a ban on checks for less than $1. The new code goes into effect January 1, 1910.

The language of the provision forbids the making, issuing, circulation or paying out of any note, check, memorandum, token or other obligation for less than $1.

It may be that the new law is a good thing, but that remains to be demonstrated. Meanwhile a good many persons will naturally feel that the fool-killer might do a good job at Washington and Harrisburg if the mania to enact laws could in some way be headed off. With respectful deference to the wise men at Washington we would suggest that it would be more to the point to legislate along the line of helping tax-payers to be able to draw checks, even if for less than the modest sum of $1.

Send us $1 and we will send you all the news in "The Republican" each week for one year.

Record of Deaths.

fought a brave fight to win back her health and in this she had everything in the way of sympathetic encouragement. Just when those nearest and dearest to her were most hopeful of her ultimate recovery death intervened with the peaceful rest which had been denied to her in the closing years of her life. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 10 o'clock from the home of her late parents, after which interment will be made at the Union cemetery. The pall-bearers selected are Dr. James E. Stine, Rev. George M. Glenn, Dr. W. S. Glenn, Dr, R. G. H. Hayes, John Noll, Wilbur F. Harris, Harry E. Fenlon, George T. Bush, James R. Hughes and C. K. Hicklen. To the bereaved family we extend our sincerest sympathy, offering the consoling thought that there could be but one reward for a young woman whose life was so good and pure.

FRANCES TWITMIRE.

With a suddenness that almost baffled comprehension death on Tuesday afternoon claimed little Frances Twitmire, the eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Twitmire, of Sunbury. Ill but a few hours she succumbed to diphtheria, which developed with such rapidity that her eyes closed in peaceful sleep almost before her parents realized the terrible danger of the dreaded disease. A pretty little girl and an only child her death is especially sad and the sympathy of the community is with the bereaved parents. On Sunday she accompanied her parents to Bellefonte to attend the funeral of Mrs. Twitmire's brother, Bruce Underwood. She was not well before leaving Sunbury, complaining of sickness of the stomach. On arriving here she went to the home of her grandfather, W. T. Twitmire, and a physician was summoned. Even then it was not realized that diphtheria had developed. On Monday night her throat was quite sore and on Tuesday morning it was found to be badly swollen. From that time on her condition rapidly became worse and about 4 o'clock in the afternoon she died. Owing to the nature of her disease the funeral was private, interment being made yesterday in the Union cemetery. Until her parents removed to Sunbury about two years ago Frances Twitmire lived in Bellefonte and wss a great favorite among other children of her age. She was especially bright and was the life of her grandfather's home.

ESTHER JANE DOLAN.

Esther Jane Dolan, wife of John W. Dolan, died at her late home at Lamar, on Wednesday, Sept. 22, aged 68 years. She was Esther Jane Barndt and was born at Jacksonville, Nov. 11, 1841, and spent the earlier years of her life in that vicinity. Very early in her youth she found Christ as a Savior, and became a member of the Lick Run Presbyterian church, from which she never removed her membership. On August 27, 1859, she was married to John W. Dolan, who survives her. Eleven children blessed their union, eight of whom lived to cheer her later years: Annie, wife of John Dullen, Wm. T. and Chas. A., all of Nittany; Carrie A., wife of D. A. McDowell, of Mill Hall; Edward M., of Jacksonville; Jennie, wife of Edward Moore, of Vilas; and George V. and Richard at home. A true wife, a loving mother, a good neighbor, a strong Christian, she will be greatly missed in the wide circle of relationships that had known her so long and esteemed her so highly. Funeral services were held at her late home on Saturday at 10:30, conducted by Rev. Dr. J. Allison Platts, of Bellefonte, and the body was laid to rest in the cemetery beside the church home of her childhood.

MISS SUSAN ALEXANDER.

Miss Susan Alexander died on Tuesday morning at her late home, at Boalsburg, aged 70 years. Her illness dates back almost a year, when she suffered a stroke of paralysis, gradually wasting her life away. She was a daughter of the late Henry Alexander, one of the pioneer settlers of Penn township. Maria and Susan, resided in Boalsburg for many years, Maria dying about one year ago. Thus the well-known Alexander family is broken up. Susan was a member of the Presbyterian Church and is survived by a brother, Frank, and a sister, Elizabeth, both living at Freeport, Ill. Interment was made on Thursday in the Boalsburg cemetery, Rev. W. K. Harnish, officiating.

STEWART WILSON.

Stewart Wilson, another old Civil War veteran, died at his home, near Steffey's church, last Thursday morning. Death was due to heart trouble. He was aged 64 years. He was a kind neighbor and friend, a brave soldier and a member of Co. G, 148 P. V. He was arranging to go to Cold Harbor at the time of his death. He was a member of the M. E. Church. Interment was made on Saturday at 10 o'clock, at Steffey's church yard.

BENJAMIN AUSTIN.

Benjamin Austin died in his 69th year at his home at Milesburg, last Thursday morning at 4 o'ciock after a long illness. Funeral services were held in the Methodist church at that place on Sunday afternoon at one o'clock, Rev. Mr. Oyler officiating. Interment was made in Curtin cemetery. Mr. Austin was a veteran of the Civil War and a member of the I. O. O. F. of Milesburg. He is survived by his widow, four sons and three daughters.

MISS ELIZABETH STALKER.

Miss Elizabeth Stalker died at her home at Williamsburg, last Friday evening from acute stomach trouble. She had been ill but two days. She was a daughter of John and Elizabeth Stalker and was born near Warriors Mark about seventy-five years ago. Interment was made on Tuesday at the Graysville cemetery, near Penna. Furnace.

Cough and Catarrh of Stomach.

Sergeant Arthur A. White, St. Catharines, Ont., writes:

"I have been a great sufferer with catarrh ever since the South African war, which I was all through.

"While our troops were camped around Paardeburg we had a hard time, hardly enough to eat. We had no water to drink, and were obliged to drink the dirty water in little mud puddles.

"I got run down and catarrh of the stomach set in, and ever since that march I seemed to go down in health, and the catarrh got worse. I had a bad cough.

"I tried almost every medicine sold for catarrh, but got no relief.

"An officer, a friend of mine, advised me to try Peruna. I did so, with very little faith that it would do me any good. To my surprise I got relief from the first bottle. I continued its use until I had taken six bottles in all.

"To-day I am a different man. The catarrh has entirely gone, and I am better in my general health. In fact I was never better than I am to-day, and Peruna has done it all for me."

Col. Wm. Bailey.

William Bailey, 58 I St., N. E., Washington, D. C., Past Col. Enc. No. 69, Union Veteran Legion, and prominently identified with many of the great labor protective associations in Chicago and New York, and Secretary of one of the largest associations in the former city, had for nearly thirty years been afflicted with kidney trouble.

Within a short period he has been persuaded to try Peruna, and his present healthy condition is attributed to his judicious use of that great remedy. Washington climate is notoriously bad for kidney and liver troubles, yet by a judicious use of the remedy he is now quite cured and in excellent physical condition.

This brief statement of facts, without exaggeration or hyperbole, appears to tell the whole story, which the Peruna Company is authorized to use, if it so chooses, believing, as I do, that by so doing it will be for the general good.

—Wm. Bailey.

Col. C. L. Patten.

Col. C. L. Patten, 509 T St., N. W., Washington, D. C., a Lieutenant in the Old Guard, an exclusive organization, composed of soldiers of distinction who fought in the civil war, and a Thirty-second degree Mason, writes as follows:

"I have used Peruna and desire to recommend your remedy as an invigorating spring tonic; also one of the best remedies that I ever tried for coughs, colds and catarrhal complaints."

Hon. R. S. Ryan.

Hon. R. S. Ryan, now residing in Nome, Alaska, was formerly a member of the English House of Parliament, and Secretary to the late Irish patriot, Charles Stewart Parnell. His Washington address is New Willard Hotel, Washington, D. C. He writes. "I have used Peruna and can recommend your remedy as a very effective cure for colds and catarrhal complaints."

Hon. Thomas Cale.

Hon. Thomas Cale, elected to Congress from Alaska, is well known on the Pacific slope, where he has resided. His Washington address is 1312 9th St., N. W., Washington, D. C. He writes: "I can cheerfully recommend Peruna as a very efficient remedy for coughs and colds."

Joseph Dunkle, who for a number of years has occupied the Lauth farm and supplied the residents of Howard with good, pure, fresh milk, has rented the John Hoy, Jr., farm, near Jacksonville, and will move upon the same in the spring. It was very much feared when the Lauth farm was sold that we would be deprived of the milk supply but it is Mr. Dunkle's intention to cover his route from the Hoy farm when he locates there. Joe is one of our good citizens and will be very much missed in the community.

The succession of events on the farm brings us around to the corn cutting period and the crisp, fresh morning air recalls that the time for buckwheat cakes is fast approaching, while the tinge of the leaves along the mountain tops announces that the melancholy days are come. Hand-in-hand with the corn cutting comes the cider making and apple-butter boiling, the latter recalling the many pleasant evenings spent at apple cutting parties when the "mug of cider simmers low" and our fortunes were told with apple parings.

In early life he was a school teacher and it is an easy matter to find those of his pupils whose hair is whitening with age. For many years he was justice of the peace in Howard, but for the past few years has lived a retired life. He is still active and in keen possession of all his faculties. Vitality of Prohibition.

The person who would say that the Prohibition party has done nothing to entitle it to a place in history is far astray. It has lived longer than did the Liberty, the Free-Soil, the Know-Nothing, the Green- back and Populist parties taken together, and they were the best known and most powerful of all our minor political organizations. For twice as many years as passed between the birth and the death of the Whig party, which sent William Henry Harrison and Zachary Taylor to the House, and which had Webster, Clay, Fillmore, Everett, Bell and Crittenden for leaders, it has been with us. It has participated in twice as many presidential campaigns as the Federalist organization--the party of Washington, Adams, John Jay, Charles Cotesworth Pinckney and Rufus King. Alone of all the parties which have figured in American politics, the Democratic and the Republic organizations have lived longer than the Prohibition party. Unlike the Anti-Masonic, the Know Nothing and the Populist parties, the Prohibitionists never recived an electoral vote. Unlike these, as well as the Free-Soil and the Greenback parties, they never elected any of their candidates to Congress.

Charged with Killing Calf.

Four men were arrested last week and lodged in the Lock Haven jail charged with larceny of a calf owned by James McGonigal, the well known lumberman of Pottersdale. They were committed to jail in default of $300 bail.

It is alleged that the men shot the calf which, with other cattle, was pasturing in the woods. Then after removing the head and hide the carcass was quartered and divided among the four. Officers surprised the men at daylight just as they were partaking of breakfast. They offered no resistance and the two officers landed the quartet at Renovo later in the morning from which place they were taken to Lock Haven.

Trusting the Dog's Judgment.

Friend—What on earth are you doing to that painting of yours? Dauber—Can't you see? I'm rubbing a piece of raw meat over the rabbit in the foreground. Mrs. Alsboddie will be here today, and when she sees her pet dog smell of that rabbit she'll buy it.—Judge.

Salvation Army Appeal.

To the Editor of "The Republican":

Pardon our troubling again for space in your widely read paper, but the subject is really urgent. During the nine weeks we have been in charge of the corps here, have had four conversions at the jail meetings, one person having been reinstated at his work through our efforts and is doing well. We have also had four conversions at our hall services.

But a great part of our time has to be spent running about soliciting money to pay our rent and get enough to keep body and soul united. You will readily understand when we tell you our weekly average salary has been $2.85.

There is need of our work in this town for those whom the churches cannot reach, and we hold meetings each night and six on Sunday, to help the downcast and friendless.

We placed seventeen collection boxes in stores and banks for the week-end and the result was but 45 cents. We wrote and interviewed eleven pastors of churches who solicited special collections. The result was $8.87; hence this desperate appeal.

We have a few kind friends on our Rent League who subscribe $1 monthly, and we earnestly ask you to permit us to add your name, of whom we require at least twenty more, and thus spread our burden over a number instead of taxing the few. To those who have sent us small amounts we extend our best thanks.

The following few subscribe regularly to our Rent League, and the first three will kindly speak for us. We seek to stop worrying the few continually for donations. Will you respond? All acknowledged: Miss Mary Linn, Mrs. John Blanchard, C. C. Shuey, William P. Humes, Joseph Bros., Mrs. James Harris, Mrs. John P. Harris, Mrs. Mary Wilson, Dr. Dobbins.

Thanking you by anticipation. Yours to serve,

W. J. HARVEY and wife,
Officers in Charge.

Work Day on a Mississippi Plantation.

The day begins on a plantation when it is yet night. The big bell rings between 4 and 5 o'clock for the "hands" to go to the fields. Mammy starts her small sable assistants around at the "big house" with early coffee about 6. Without this tiny cup of cafe noir your true creole gets up on the wrong side of the bed. He has no appetite for breakfast after a ride through the fields and still less for his generous noonday dinner. Supper is served at night, and the dishes are typically southern—the corn and batter breads, fried chickens and waffles and fig preserves, with "sillabub," that moonbeam mixture that makes modern ices and confections heavy by comparison, for dessert. Life on a plantation is not dull. There are visits to town and a constant stream of visitors from town. There are "sugar house" parties and hog killings, Christmas doings and Thanksgiving dinners, to say nothing of house parties and hunts.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

The Herring.

A peculiar feature in the herring trade is that an exceptionally large catch during one season has no effect whatever upon the next year's supply; also, large as is man's consumption of herrings, naturalists say the number killed by fishermen is quite insignificant as compared with the quantity destroyed every year by sharks, porpoises, cod, dogfish, ling and other fish, each of which must have its daily meal of from one to two score herrings, to say nothing of the sea birds, which practically live on surface feeding fishes. Herrings are not at all a modern article of diet. A vast commerce in them was carried on in northern Europe all through the dark and middle ages. The herring's chief food consists of minute organisms, which it strains from the water by its gills, but it also eats worms and at certain seasons its own young, sprats and sand eels.—Pearson's Weekly.

Rule of the Corset.

If Cleopatra wore corsets she may rank as a royal champion of them with Catherine de' Medici, who is credited with having introduced the busked corset in France from Italy. Male monarchs have been less friendly. Joseph II. of Austria tried to discourage the corset by making it part of the costume of a convicted woman of bad character. Napoleon, shaking his head over the tight lacing of his day, told Dr. Corvisart that he saw in it a sign of frivolous tastes and a menace of coming decadence. The restoration kings, Louis XVIII. and Charles X., were equally hostile. Formerly, said the latter, France had been full of Venuses, Dianas and Niobes, but now there were only wasps. The revolution alone temporarily put down the garment that has triumphantly defied kings.—London Spectator.

A Boomerang.

An amusing incident occurred when the house of lords was in committee on the reform bill of 1867. The clerk of the house intimated that an amendment had been handed in, the writing of which was so illegible that he was unable to say what it was about or who had written it. It was then discovered that Lord Lyttleton was the author, and it turned out to be a proposal disfranchising all persons who could not write.—Westminster Gazette.

Out of Place.

A sentry, an Irishman, was on post duty for the first time at night, when the officer of the day approached. He called, "Who comes there?"

"Officer of the day," was the reply.

"Then what are yez doin' out at night?" asked the sentry.—London Telegraph.

Demeanor Analyzed.

"Your chauffeur seems very respectful," said the guest.

"That air of deferential solicitude," replied Mr. Chuggins, "is not respect. It is sympathy."—Washington Star.

REVOKE FISH BASKETS IN ALL TROUT STREAMS

Deputy Attorney General Orders Recall of Licenses.

MANY ARE AFFECTED

Decision Prompted By Test Case Developing in Lycoming County Where Licenses Were Issued for Streams Not Officially Designated.

The use of fish baskets in trout streams is being made the subject for considerable discussion in a number of counties. The latest development is an opinion by Deputy Attorney General Hargest directing County Treasurer Gamble, of Lycoming county, to revoke fish basket licenses where they have been granted for streams containing trout. Fish Commissioner Meehan also directed that this be done.

When the fish basket licenses in question were issued in Lycoming county there was considerable doubt as to the intent of the law. Moreover, the streams specified were not officially set apart as trout streams. Since that time Commissioner Meehan has been conducting hearings and taking testimony in that county for the purpose of determining what are and what are not trout streams.

In a letter to Commissioner Meehan it was suggested by Mr. Gamble that since many licenses were issued before it was known officially what were trout streams it would be only fair if the holders of such licenses be allowed to continue the baskets until the expiration of the season but that after that time no more permits be granted on streams officially designated as trout streams. To this Commissioner Meehan replied as follows:

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 21, 1909.

Mr. George A. Gamble, Williamsport, Pa.

Dear Sir: I have yours of September 20. I can hardly see how it would not be a square deal to cancel licenses for fish baskets which you gave to people under a misapprehension. There is a well founded legal principal of ignorance of the law is no excuse. These people had no business to apply for a license without knowing whether or not they were legally entitled to it. The law says that a fish basket must not be licensed for a stream known to contain trout. There is no reservation and the presumption is therefore unless there is an official determination otherwise that the entire stream is included. I have, however, asked the opinion of the attorney general to definitely settle the matter by a decision and you can withhold the cancellation of the licenses already issued until the decision is received, which will probably be by the latter end of next week. In the meantime issue no licenses for any stream in which trout are known to exist in any part thereof.

In regard to the suggestion of deciding which streams are trout streams and which are not, this department cannot act unless there is a petition requesting such determination to be made for specific streams and even then the determination must necessarily be slow. The department now has under consideration no less than fifteen streams and the taking of testimony naturally involves much time. If the people of Lycoming county are not satisfied they must apply to the department for such determination.

Sincerely,

W. E. MEEHAN,

Commissioner of Fisheries.

P. S. Since writing the above the opinion of the attorney general has been received and I enclose you a copy.

The opinion eminating from the attorney general's office and signed by W. M. Hargest, assistant deputy attorney general, after reciting the questions on which Commissioner Meehan desired a ruling sets forth the language of Section 28 of the fish law and then goes on to say that Larry's creek which is one of the streams at issue and which was stocked by the state with trout is not a suitable site for fish baskets. The opinion is divided into four parts, the concluding paragraphs of the first part and those of the remaining three bearing on the situation in this county follow:

"You, are therefore, advised that the county treasurer cannot legally issue a license for a fish basket in a stream if trout are commonly fished for and caught in any part of such stream until the board of fishery commission has first determined that the portion of the stream wherein the fish basket is to be set or used is not inhabited by trout.

"Second: You also ask to be advised if a county treasurer issued license for a fish basket to be set and used in a part of the stream upon allegation that such part does not contain trout, whether such license is binding on the department of fisheries. You are hereby advised that such license is binding as long as it is outstanding to the extent of protecting the person who places or sets a fish basket pursuant to such license. The issuance of such license, however, is not binding on the department of fisheries, as fixing, as a matter of fact that such portion of the stream is not inhabited by trout. The department of fisheries can determine independently whether a license is issued or not and whether a stream is inhabited by trout.

"Third, you also ask to be advised whether it is your duty to return check to the county treasurer when the license is granted for a part of a stream which is known to contain trout. It is your duty to return the check to the county treasurer with a request to cancel and revoke the license.

"Fourth, you further ask to be advised whether, if a license is issued by a county treasurer, for a fish basket in a stream known to be inhabited by trout, such license is binding on the department so as to prevent it from prosecuting the license. Such license does prevent a successful prosecution, but in that case the county treasurer ought to be promptly requested to revoke the license and the licensee notified to remove the fish basket."

Mr. Gamble stated that Commissioner Meehan had not returned his check covering the payment of licenses and that until this is done he will take no action. If license fees are returned in cases where permits have been issued for what the fisheries department now regards as trout streams, the money will be refunded to the licensee and the licenses revoked.

A UNIQUE RECORD

Not Another Like It in Our Broad Republic.

To give positive home testimony in every locality is of itself unanswerable proof of merit; but when we add to this the continued endorsement from people who testified years ago no evidence can be stronger. A Bellefonte citizen gratefully acknowledges the good received from Doan's Kidney Pills, and when time has tested the cure we find the same hearty endorsement, with added enthusiasm and continued praise. Cases of this kind are plentiful in the work of Doan's Kidney Pills, and such a record is unique in the annals of medicine.

Mrs. James Rine, 239 High St., Bellefonte, Pa. says: "I have had no occasion to use Doan's Kidney Pills during the past ten years, and I cheerfully confirm the public statement I have previously given in their favor. I think Doan's Kidney Pills the most reliable remedy in existence. At the time I procured them at Green's drug store and began their use, I was suffering severely from backache and other symptons of kidney trouble. I was cured and out of gratitude I have since recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to many other people. I know that the remedy has lived up to the claims made for it."

Hudson as a Path Blazer.

It is sometimes said that Hudson was not the discoverer of the river which bears his name. Likewise it is claimed that Fulton was not the inventor of the steamboat. Only in the narrow, technical sense is either assertion true. Verrazano, the Florentine navigator, seems to have seen the mouth of the river in 1524, eighty-five years before Hudson reached that spot, and in 1525 Gomez, the Spanish sea captain, got a long-range glimpse of it. But their discoveries had as little influence on events on the river as did the sea-gulls which alighted on the beach at Sandy Hook or dropped down on Governor's Island. The world of their day never heard of the river from either of them. With Hudson, this British navigator in the service of Holland, the case is wholly different. In his eighty-ton Half Moon he entered New York Bay on September 2nd., 1609, passed Manhattan Island on the 12th., and reached the head of navigation, a short distance above Albany, on the 19th. Realizing by this time that the River of Mountains, as he named it, would not furnish that long-sought short cut by water through the continent to the Pacific, and thus to India, he dropped down stream and passed out through the Narrows on October 2nd. Hudson was a little over four weeks on the river, he ascended it as far as any vessel of the draft of the Half Moon could go, he told the world about what he had seen along its banks—the men, the animals, the mountains, the valleys, the vegetation—and the world liked the story so well that one portion of it, his patron, Holland, soon took posession of the paradise which he found. Deafness Cannot be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces,

THE MAN IN THE RED CAR.

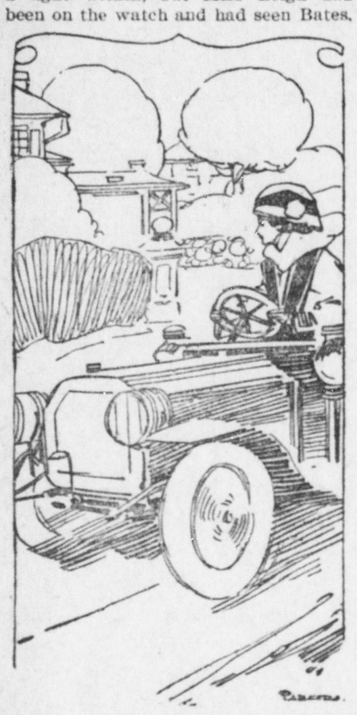
How a Stranger's Logic Turned a Runaway Girl Back Home.

By HOWARD FIELDING.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Miss Leigh was running away from home. Let the fact suffice for the moment; the young lady's reasons will appear in due time.

It was about 10 of the evening, a crisp, clear night, with a bright moon in the sky. The shadows of bare branches lay black and still; they looked rigid and brittle, as if one could pick them up and break them. The door of the old coach house, recently transformed for the accommodation of automobiles, was open, and there was a light within, but Miss Leigh had been on the watch and had seen Bates,



ALL WAS WELL THUS FAR.

the chauffeur, cross to the kitchen. He would not stay long, yet long enough.

She had meant to take the runabout, but it was in a corner, and everything stood in its way. Close by the door and headed outward stood the red car, which she liked least, but its position determined her choice. Within one minute she was on the road and no one had seen her. All was well thus far.

It would be a run of about thirty miles to the home of her very dearest and best friend in Princeton, where she expected to set up her camp and make a treaty with her father. The friend was happily married. She had abandoned many luxuries for the sake of love and now lived simply in a little house. Miss Leigh was sure of a sympathetic welcome, but she was not equally sure of the road, and, above all, she feared mishap in passing her uncle's house, about a mile from her own. On such a pleasant evening there might be half a dozen young people by the gate.

As she came in sight of that spot, around a turn of the road, she saw two cars beside the way, and she checked her own vehicle very suddenly in a mass of shadow. Thence she looked out keenly and could discern no one in the cars or anywhere about, so she decided to run the gantlet.

She put on the power, and nothing happened. The propulsive mechanism seemed to be working, but the car did not move.

Miss Leigh had not the least idea what was the matter. She had only a fair weather acquaintance with the red car. She could run it when it behaved well, but its less amiable moods were a mystery. It was now doing its very worst. It would not budge an inch, and it continued to assail the ear of night with a most villainous racket. Miss Leigh jumped out and, after a hasty glance toward her uncle's house, turned to the refractory automobile.

"YOU FRIGHTENED ME!" SHE GASPED.

Instantly the girl was stricken into the semblance of a statue, petrified with amazement and terror. There was a man in the red car!

The thing was impossible, a nightmare, a piece of black magic. Yet the man was there. He sat directly behind the place which she had just vacated, his arms carelessly resting on the back of that very seat. A rough looking man he was, wearing a red sweater, a heavy dark jacket and a queer cap set on the back of his head.

"What's the matter?" said he in rather a pleasant voice.

The girl's hands went to her heart.

"You frightened me!" she gasped.

The fellow wagged his head slowly.

"That isn't possible," said he. "Nobody can frighten you. You have to frighten yourself. I might hurt you, but nothing in the world or out of it can scare you unless you let it."

"Where did you come from?" she demanded.

"Dreamland," he replied. "I must have been asleep when you took the car out. The first thing I knew we were on the road."

"I want you to get out and go right straight away," said she.

He smiled upon her, as it were, indulgently.

"Have you considered the subject?" said he. "Do you really wish me to go away, or do you wish me to mend the car? It's broken down, hasn't it?"

The man's perfect calm had begun to have its effect upon Miss Leigh. She felt some disposition to use her reason which terror had at first dethroned. If this fellow had meditated robbery he would not have waited so long. His opportunity was perfect when he sat behind her in the car.

"Can you mend the car?" said she. "Do you know anything about automobiles?"

"Several facts of great importance," he replied, alighting.

"What were you doing in our garage?" she demanded.

"My original intention was to meditate," said he, "but I fell asleep."

He busied himself about the mechanism of the car, and she perceived that he was not without knowledge of it. She had quite ceased to be afraid of him. Good nature seemed to radiate from the creature.

"You're a tramp," said she, "an educated tramp."

He wagged his head somewhat mournfully. "My education is not what I could wish," he said. "As to my way of life, it pleases me, and, though it is looked down upon and burlesqued and made a jest of in the comic papers, I intend to stick to it. Somebody must do it, so why not I?"

"Do what," said she—"tramp?"

"If some ride too luxuriously through this world, others must walk," said he. "You mustn't take me for an anarchist," he added. "I'm a pillar of law and order. But my tastes are simple. I fashion my life upon a pattern of frugality which seems to bring me happiness, and I can't help wishing that the world would do the like. Society is an awful spendthrift.

"And now, young lady," he proceeded in a different and more decided tone, "there is nothing the matter with this car. If I tell you what to do you can do it and the car will run. But shall I really be serving you?"

"What do you mean?"

"May I ask where you are going?"

"Certainly not," said she. "It is no affair of yours."

He leaned back against the car and regarded her earnestly.

"You are running away," said he.

"How dare you say so!"

"Consider, my young friend," he responded. "Can it have been by accident that you came to the carriage house the instant that the chauffeur left it? What will he think when he finds the car gone? For a trifle you would not have given him cause to suspect that the car had been stolen."

"CAN YOU MEND THE CAR?" SAID SHE.

"How do you know all this?" she demanded. "You said that you were asleep."

"I merely guessed it," he replied, "but now I see that it is true. Why are you leaving home?"

"You can have no interest in me," she cried. "You ask these questions merely to emphasize your advantage. I cannot go except with your permission. Very well; name your price. But it must not be high," she added, with sudden prudence, "for I have very little."

"You have all that I ask," he said, "an excuse for your conduct. That excuse must be mine now, for if you continue your flight I shall be responsible."

Miss Leigh stood between two perils. At any moment some one might appear from her uncle's house or Bates might come flying down the road in quest of the missing car. She searched her mind for an available falsehood and failed to find one. She had already confessed too much. This man knew that she was running away. Any falsehood would result in questions and delay. The truth was the quickest.

"There is a guest at our house with whom my father has forced me into an engagement of marriage," she said. "I hate the man. I will never meet him again upon such terms. I am going to a friend's house in Princeton, where I shall stay until this matter can be adjusted."

The man seemed to ponder for a moment.

"You have very singular ideas," he said. "How in the world can anybody force you into an engagement of marriage?"

"You do not understand," she cried impatiently. "My father's interests are involved in this marriage."

"How?" said he.

"Oh, you will drive me crazy!" she exclaimed. "Do you expect me to stand here in the road discoursing of my personal affairs with a tramp?"

"On the other hand," said he gently, "do you expect me to assist you in an act of arrant cowardice? Why, look here! Suppose you'd been in danger in the car. You'd have expected me to save you at the risk of my own neck, and I hope I might have had the grace to try. And now I see you plunging straight at the gulf of moral degradation, and you ask me to give you a push. No; I won't do it!"

"Is it morally degrading to go to my friend's house?"

"Answer me this," said he. "Will your running away help your father?"

"I should think not!"

"Will it help the man you're engaged to?"

"I don't care whether it does or not. But it won't."

"Do you love somebody else?"

"Yes!" she cried, half frantic with impatience.

"Will this flight help him?"

"I don't know. I never thought of it. Do you wish me to say that I thought only of myself? Well, I did. I was uncomfortable to the verge of distraction, and I wanted to get away."

"What made you uncomfortable?"

"I've told you—this wretched engagement."

"Why not break it?" The fellow's manner was as bland as a May morning. "To run away, letting this engagement stand even for the few hours that must elapse before you can communicate with your home, is moral degradation. That's what I meant when I used the term. And, by the way, did you leave any word behind you?"

"No; I intended to telephone from my friend's house."

"And break the engagement?"

"Not necessarily," said she—"that is, not immediately. I hoped to temporize."

"For your father's sake?"

"Yes," said she, with hesitation. "I hoped it might do him some small good."

"This gentleman you're engaged to is rich, isn't he?"

"Yes."

"From New York?"

"Yes."

"What is he going to do for your father?"

By this time Miss Leigh had fallen into the trance that sometimes engulfs a badgered witness in court. She no longer had the strength or the sense to refuse an answer.

"It's something about banks," said she. "My father gets a large interest in several. It will make him very rich."

"And Mr. Waldo Kennard gives your father that opportunity because of his affection for you?"

"Yes. How did you know his name?"

"I have heard it spoken. Did you ever care for him?"

"I was fascinated. The man has an extraordinary power."

"And his wealth?"

"It may have tempted me. But all that is at an end."

"The man you really love is poor?"

"He is not rich. But surely I am going mad! Why—why on earth do I stand here babbling like this? You have made me do it. There is a shrewdness in you that is more than human. You have twisted me around your finger. You are no tramp. What are you?"

"Do you wish to go to your friend's house?"

"I think not," said she. "No; not now. No one who had talked with you for half an hour could do anything in hot blood. There is a dire calmness about you that is contagious. And I will do you justice too. You have inspired me with a certain courage. If you can mend the car I will go home."

"And break the engagement?"

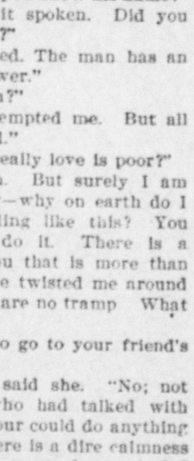
"Yes, tonight. I will end it."

He gave her his hand to assist her into the car.

"Your father will not be poorer," said he, "but I think he will be wiser."

"What do you mean by that?"

"I mean," said he, "that in offering certain bank stock to your father Mr. Kennard is consulting his own interests solely. His desire for your hand, if you will pardon me, is merely a blind to account for the price at which he offers the shares. He has wrecked those banks. They stands upon the brink of ruin, and now he is peddling his stock to country capitalists with city ambitions. Your father would have lost every penny that he put in."



"YOUR FATHER WOULD HAVE LOST EVERY PENNY."

The girl was standing in the car, bending forward and looking down at him.

"Who are you?" she cried.

"To be frank with you," said he, "I am a detective in the employ of Uncle Sam, and I have a warrant in my pocket for Mr. Waldo Kennard's arrest. I was sitting in your garage, by courtesy of your Mr. Bates, meditating upon the question whether I should serve that warrant tonight or tomorrow morning, when I sank into slumber and the bottom of this car. So you ran away with me, and here I am."

He Beat the Baker.

His name was Johnny, and he was the idol of his mother's heart in spite of what the neighbors might say to his detriment.

"You'll get my bread today before returning to school, John," remarked his mother to the boy while he indulged in his midday meal.

"Yes, mother," answered he and shortly went forth to carry out his mother's wishes.

"A quartern of bread—yesterday's, please," murmured John sweetly as he tendered fivepence halfpenny in payment of the two loaves forthcoming.

"Bread has gone up, my boy, one halfpenny," remarked Mr. Dough as he held out his hand for the needful balance.

"When?" queried John thoughtfully as the prospect of a distasteful double journey flashed across his mind.

"This morning, my lad, if that is any consolation."

Johnny's face brightened visibly. "Yes, I think it is," he remarked spasmodically, "for it was yesterday's bread I ordered."

The baker concluded he had no claim.—London Telegraph.

The Candle Tree.

One of the wonders of the vegetable kingdom is undoubtedly the candle tree of Panama, known to botanists as Parmentiera cerifera. This tree produces from its stem and older branches a great profusion of yellowish, cylindrical, smooth fruits, twelve to eighteen inches long, which appear exactly like wax candles, as the botanical name implies. So close is this resemblance that travelers, seeing the tree for the first time, are liable to be temporarily puzzled as to whether the candles of shops are made in factories or grown on trees! The candle-like fruits are suspended from the branches and bare stem by short, slender stalks, dangling in the air, and readily give the impression of the chandler's shop. As night falls and the numerous fireflies move among the fruit this impression is intensified. The inexperienced traveler is not infrequently informed that the fireflies perform the duty of lighting up these "candles" at night when light is required by the denizens of the jungle—London Strand.

A Lich Gate.

A lich gate is a shed, generally of oak, over the entrance of a churchyard, beneath which the bearers paused when bringing a body for interment. Here the clergyman met the body and read the introductory part of the burial service as he preceded the funeral train into the church. Examples of old lich gates are still to be seen in many country churchyards. In Wales they are more modern and are usually built of stone. Some of the old lich gates are formed with one wide door turning on a central pivot and self closing by means of a rude pulley wheel in the roof and a stone weight inclosed in an iron frame, a primitive but effective piece of machinery. In Herefordshire they are also called "scallage" or "scallenge" gates. "Lich gate" is derived from the Anglo-Saxon lich, a corpse; hence the north country "lyke wake."—London Answers.

Hypnotic Power In Animals.

An interesting instance of the hypnotic power possessed by a good many animals is given by a correspondent of the Glasgow Herald. One morning outside Elgin a blackbird was observed to be standing by the roadside, paying no heed to the footsteps of the passerby. It was gazing fixedly at four young weasels under the hedge, which were approaching in a semicircle, apparently to surround it. Just then a warning cry was heard from behind, uttered presumably by the parent weasel, and the young ones disappeared in the hedge. The bird still remained powerless and immovable, and only after repeated urging did it fly to a tree near by, when it gave forth a weak, frightened sound, as though still under the influence of the terror which had arrested its faculties.

A Mild Hint.

Two guests came to spend the evening and didn't know when to depart. The host and hostess were patient with them, very patient, but when 11, 12 and finally 1 o'clock struck the husband realized that something must be done. He was an original chap, and in his droll way he looked over at his wife and said mildly:

"My dear, hadn't we better get up to bed? Our friends may want to be going."

The Separation.

"I understand that she is separated from her husband."

"Yes."

"Oh, tell me all about it. What did she do?"

"Nothing. He died."

It Was Hard.

A Great Walker.

On July 12, 1809, the Newmarket bells rang a peal in honor of Captain Barclay's completed walk of a mile in each of 1,000 successive hours. In his first week of it he had averaged less than fifteen minutes for each mile and in the last week more than twenty-one, and his weight had gone down from thirteen stone four pounds to eleven stone. But on July 17 he joined the Walcheren expedition in perfect health as aid-de-camp to the Marquis of Huntly. Captain Barclay, who was a Barclay of Ury and unsuccessfully claimed three Scottish earldoms, had performed wonderful feats before the Newmarket walk. In 1801 he walked 110 miles in nineteen hours in a muddy park. In 1808 he rose one morning at 5, walked thirty miles grouse shooting, dined at 5 p. m., walked sixty miles to his house at Ury in eleven hours, did some business and walked sixteen miles to dance at a ball, walked home by 7 a. m. and spent the day partridge shooting—in all 130 miles without sleep for two nights and three days. At twenty he could lift half a ton.—St. James' Gazette.

Not Afraid.

Personal courage invests its owner with a protection beyond that afforded by outside forces. An illustration of this is recorded by General William F. Draper in his "Recollections of a Varied Career," where he gives this incident:

In 1864 Colonel Daniels of the Seventh Rhode Island became unpopular with some of his command, and a rumor spread that he would be shot at the next engagement. He heard of it. It was customary when guns had been loaded for some time to have them discharged into some convenient bank, and Colonel Daniels took advantage of this. Marching his regiment out with loaded rifles, he faced them toward a suitable elevation, and, taking position on the top of it and in front of them as at dress parade, he gave the commands, "Ready!" "Aim!" "Fire!" and the pieces were discharged.

Needless to say, any man could have shot him with little danger of discovery, and, needless to say, also, none of them did. There were no more threats of that kind in his regiment.

Europe's Dirtiest Town.

All travelers should shun Boryslaw, in Galicia—"the back of Europe"—truthfully called the dirtiest place in Europe. It is the oil trade center and is decidedly not beautiful. In the main street all the houses have been built on mine refuse, and most of them have sunk below the level of the street. In fact, there is not a solid brick or stone building in the whole of the town, and many of the houses are in a state of partial or entire collapse. Unrefined petroleum is everywhere. It gets into everything—food and clothing—and the atmosphere reeks of it. Along one side of the main street is a raised wooden pavement, and beneath it is an oily ditch. Boryslaw's main waterway is a narrow, sluggish, oily stream. On its banks the town's refuse is cast, and the market booths are erected alongside, while the local washerwomen—though from external appearances one would judge that laundresses did not exist there at all—do their washing in its oily depths.

He Was Out.

Surprising, What Kodol Will Do

For you, when you need it. But the longer you neglect Indigestion, the more you will suffer before Kodol can restore Good Digestion.

And, of course, indigestion if neglected long enough, brings on serious diseases in which Kodol cannot benefit you. Some of these there is no help for at all.

There are, in fact, very few ailments which cannot be traced directly to impure blood. And impure blood is always due to a disordered stomach.

Use Kodol and prevent Nervous Dyspepsia.

Kodol will effectually assist Nature to secure a complete restoration of good digestion. It does this by at once digesting all food in the stomach and keeping it digested, until the stomach is rested and can resume its own work. Kodol removes the cause—and the effect quickly removes itself.

When it is recalled that Apoplexy, Heart Disease, Cancer—and even Consumption—are due to poor digestion and poisons thus transmitted to the blood, and throughout the system—the importance of maintaining good digestion is at once realized.

We knew what Kodol would do before ever the first bottle was sold. If we did not know just what it will do, we would not guarantee it the way we do.

It is easy for you to prove Kodol—the next (or the first) time you have an attack of indigestion. And you will certainly be surprised at the results. It is perfectly harmless.

There can be no harm in trying something that may do you a great deal of good—when it costs you nothing if it doesn't.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today and get a dollar bottle. Then after you have used the entire contents of the bottle if you can honestly say, that it has not done you any good, return the bottle to the druggist and he will refund your money without question or delay. We will then pay the druggist for the bottle. Don't hesitate, all druggists know that our guarantee is good. This offer applies to the large bottle only and to but one in a family. The large bottle contains 2½ times as much as the fifty cent bottle.

Kodol is prepared at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

Sold by all Dealers.

Dr. J. W. Dunwiddie, of Philipsburg, who has been practicing medicine in the Mountain City since 1870, was a Bellefonte visitor on Monday, circulating among some of our citizens in the interest of the new Philipsburg Disciple church which is being erected at a cost of upward of $13,000. Had he started out on the policy of insisting on having things his own way there wouldn't have been anything to it since he stands about six feet, is built proportionately and has a grip that reminds one very much of a steel vise. Just as hundreds of others are doing Dr. Dunwiddie visited "The Republican" office and entered his name as a subscriber. He said that he was desirious of getting all the Centre county news and that's why he subscribed to "The Republican."

Dyed-in-the-wool Republicanism and straight-from-the-shoulder Democracy came together on Monday when John A. Fortney, of Boalsburg, dropped into "The Republican" office for a little chat before taking the afternoon train for home. If all the Democrats in the world were as sunny and whole-souled as Constable Fortney there would be little left to fight about between the two great parties. We did the best we could to lead him into the straight and narrow path but he has traveled the other road so many years that ours was a hopeless task. Some day he is going to pay us another visit and perhaps when the smoke clears away Boalsburg will be minus one good Democrat and plus one better Republican. Here's hoping so, at least.

Each revenue district is represented; Philadelphia, by A. P. White; Pittsburg, A. A. Moore; Lancaster, by J. M. Wilson, and Scranton, by Mr. Rees. If we didn't need the ever-genial "Wash" at home we would advise Harrisburg to appropriate him now that he is there.

Writing Tablets, paper, pencils, ink and slate sponges---at GREEN'S.

Mrs. Samuel Sheffer several days ago visited her sons, Herbert and Lester, at Milroy.

Sheriff Frick, of Armstrong county, was a Bellefonte visitor last Saturday. Accompanied by County Treasurer George G. Fink and County Commissioner John L. Dunlap he visited many points of interest in this vicinity, dropping into "The Republican" office for a little chat just before train time in the afternoon. Ordinarily a visit from a Sheriff is not the most enjoyable thing in the world, but Sheriff Frick is such a genial man that he would be sure to cast some sunshine even on a strictly business trip. We were glad to see him and we hope he some day will again visit our town.

HONOR HIS MEMORY.

Tribute to Late Henderson Johnston of Blanchard.

At a recent meeting of the official board of the Church of Christ, of Blanchard, resolutions were adopted paying a beautiful tribute to the memory of the late Henderson Johnston, who was a well known and highly respected resident of that community. The resolutions follow:

Whereas, God in His all-wise wisdom has seen fit to remove from our midst our brother, Henderson Johnston; and,

Whereas, he was always faithful in attendance at the services of the church and was deeply interested in its welfare; and,

Whereas, he was one of our faithful officers; therefore, be it,

Resolved, that while we miss our brother from our services and the meetings of our official board, we bow with submission to the will of Him who rules over all and who holds the issues of life and death in His hands;

Resolved, that we tender our sympathy and help to his bereaved family and commend them to a loving Father as one who will help in this, their time of need; and, be it further,

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be given to the family, a copy spread upon the minutes of the church, and that they also be published in the Bellefonte and Lock Haven papers. Done by the order of the official board of the Church of Christ of Blanchard, Pa., this 12th day of September, 1909.

All's Well That Ends Well.

Wedding plans, more so than any other, somehow seem destined to encounter curious mishaps. With wedding plans it is invariably a case of "all's well that ends well." This was the experience of Allen Burwell and Miss Beulah Randolph, of Pine Grove Mills, who now are happily married and receiving congratulations and best wishes of a host of friends. One day last week the young couple drove to Spruce Creek and everybody in that neighborhood took it for granted that a wedding ceremony had been performed. When they returned a party of friends turned out and gave them an enthusiastic serenading only to learn later on that a knot had not been tied. On Saturday, however, Mr. Burwell and Mise Randolph visited the parsonage of Rev. W. K. Harnish, at Lemont, and were quietly but happily married. It seems that there was some objection to the wedding owing to the tender ages of the young couple, but where there's a will there's a way. Now Mr. and Mrs. Burwell are open to congratulations and any serenading that may be done will be for a good cause.

OWENS – WILCOX.

A quiet but very pretty wedding was that at Philipsburg on Wednesday of last week when Miss Mary J. Owens become the wife of Charles W. Wilcox. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Owens. The groom is a well known and progressive young contractor. The young couple have many friends who wish them much happiness in life.

GARDNER – ZONG.

A pretty wedding was that at 4 o'clock yesterday when Miss Bertha Gardner became the wife of Oscar Zong, at the home of the bride, near Centre Hall. The groom is located in Bellefonte, being employed in the grocery of David Miller. The bride is young and popular and has a host of friends.

Boxing at the Armory.

Clyde Blackford has arranged for a number of fine boxing matches at the Armory, on Wednesday night, Oct. 6, (Fair week). The star bout of the evening will be between Willie McCoy, of Philadelphia, and "Young" Kimmel, of Pittsburg, who will weigh in at 124 pounds. If the boys put up the fight they are rated as being capable of the spectators should see a bout well worth the price of admission.

Unclaimed Letters.

The following letters remain at the post office for the last week:

Frank Beck, Mrs. Frank Beck, Miss Mildred Foster, Mrs. Clara Harman, Mrs. D. Lewin, James Earle McNeal, Miss Florence McCutcheon, C. M. Manchell, Mrs. Frank Spangler, Rev. F. L. Shultz.

Persons calling for these letters will kindly explain thet the same have been advertised.
